Essential Emergency Planning Training for Category 1 and 2 Responders

A range of courses designed for personnel with the responsibility for Emergency Preparedness, Response, and Recovery, instilling both confidence and competence, to carry out their roles to best practice standards.
Why undertake Essential Emergency Planning Training?

It is essential that personnel with an emergency preparedness, response and recovery role have the necessary training to enable them to carry out their roles professionally and effectively. Under the Guidance to the Civil Contingencies Act (CCA), appropriate training in records and communications is required for all Cat 1 responders and is also considered best practice for all Cat 2 responders.

Bond Solon delivers a number of 1-day courses that provide delegates with the essential legal knowledge and competencies to carry out their work effectively and to best practice standards. Delegates will consider relevant processes, procedures and rules of evidence that impact on their response to all incidents.

Training covers:
- Log Keeping
- Decision Making
- Litigation
- Inquests
- Public Inquiries

Essential Emergency Planning Training will:

- Provide both Cat 1 and 2 responders with an excellent knowledge of the relevant processes, procedures and practices
- Meet your training obligations under the CCA for Cat 1 responders and demonstrate best practice for Cat 2 responders.
- Include the evidential issues when responding to an incident
- Reduce risk and provide an opportunity to review emergency preparedness
- Create a standardised approach across the organisation when responding to incidents
- Instil confidence in personnel when responding to incidents

Good communications are at the heart of an effective response. Plans must set out arrangements to supplement usual communications facilities and provide properly trained staff. Appropriate training must be provided for the extra dimensions to communications that emergencies bring.

Unique approach in both the design and delivery of your training needs

Bond Solon will provide your organisation with the most up-to-date, relevant, useful and effective courses by working closely in partnership with you.

Courses are delivered in-house and can be tailored to your organisation’s specific needs. Bond Solon will work with key personnel to ensure the training incorporates your organisation’s policies, procedures, responsibilities and relationships with other agencies.

Courses have specific outcomes which include the necessary knowledge, understanding and skills to help ensure the competence of personnel tasked with emergency planning, response, or recovery.

Training can be based upon set case studies or can be further tailored to scrutinise documentation from past incidents, or documentation produced during tabletop or live exercises.

All courses are delivered by professional trainers who are also experienced barristers or solicitors.

Who should attend the training?

The training programmes have been successfully delivered for both Cat 1 and Cat 2 responders across the UK and can be run on either a single or multi-agency basis.

The courses are available for all personnel involved in emergency preparedness, response or recovery, from Log Keepers to Gold Commanders, including:

- Log Keepers
- Emergency Planners
- Tactical Advisors
- STACs
- Incident Commanders/Directors
- Bronze Commanders
- Silver Commanders
- Gold Commanders

I have been commissioning Bond Solon for a number of years. The training provided meets the needs of the Emergency Management team and the organisation as a whole in significantly increasing awareness, understanding and confidence. The learning outcomes apply exceptionally well back in the workplace, not only for emergency inquiries, but for other formal and legal hearings making the training excellent value for money. The feedback we receive from courses has been consistently outstanding, and I have had senior managers tell me it is the best training they have been on while at the authority. Bond Solon is one of few companies whose training I can book with complete confidence, and I recommend them to others.

Log Keeping Training

Log-keeping plays an integral part in any incident response. The CCA guidance has emphasised the importance of these documents for good communications and audit purposes. Good logs are important to the decision-making process and for their post-incident evidential value. They also allow lessons to be learned and will benefit those involved in emergency planning and response in the future. It is therefore essential that those keeping logs do so to best practice standards and understand their importance.

This 1-day course has been designed to help ensure both decision-makers and loggists keep logs according to best practice standards.

Participants will gain an understanding of how and why to write timely and accurate logs during and after a major incident. The training will also help participants develop an objective and critical eye in relation to the logs they produce. The importance of these documents from a practical and legal perspective will be highlighted and participants will be gain the necessary competencies and confidence to ensure their written material can be relied upon in any subsequent legal proceedings.

The learning is reinforced by practical exercises and the course can also, if required, include post-incident report writing.

KEY LEARNING POINTS
• Why logs are important
• How to keep a log
• How to record sensitive material
• How to pool recollections
• How to keep an incident log
• How to keep a radio/communications log
• How to keep a decision-maker’s log
• Appropriate content, language, layout, format, structure and style for post-incident reports

WHO SHOULD ATTEND:
• Log Keepers
• Emergency Planners
• Tactical Advisors
• STACs
• Incident Commanders/Directors
• Bronze, Silver and Gold Commanders

Loggists play a fundamental role in emergency response. The Bond Solon Loggist Training is excellent and should be a mandatory course for nominated log keepers within all Cat 1 responding agencies.

Our attendees gave really positive feedback and the training generating a good deal of discussion. For my part, I thought the training was really well balanced between tutorial and practical application, and we greatly appreciated the trainer’s skill at ensuring the relevance of the material to the team. Hugely impressive and we will be recommending the courses, as and when appropriate, to colleagues in the industry.

Emergencies On Trial

Incidents can lead to inquests, inquiries, criminal prosecutions and/or civil proceedings. Emergency planning personnel and other responders are at risk of being called to account in the witness box. Questions may be asked of their experience, training, records, notes and the procedures followed by them and their organisation before, during and after an incident. Interested parties and core participants may have litigious agendas to follow.

The procedures involved in giving evidence, the order of events and the roles of different people in inquests, inquiries and courts will be examined. Techniques lawyers use in questioning, particularly cross-examination, and how to deal with these will be explored.

The training can be based on a case study or be tailored around a past incident or documentation produced from a tabletop or live exercise.

This course is invaluable in reviewing emergency plans, preparedness, response and recovery. It also enables those who collect information which can be used as evidence to see how it can be challenged.

KEY LEARNING POINTS

- The role of Cat 1 and Cat 2 responders as witnesses in the adversarial and inquisitorial systems
- The importance of contemporaneous records and statements
- The procedures, order of events and roles of those in inquests, inquiries and courts
- Techniques lawyers use in questioning and how to handle them
- How to give clear, honest and objective evidence
- How to make appropriate use of supporting evidence, documents and notes when giving evidence
- How to give confident and clear testimony under difficult questioning
- How to prepare for giving evidence

WHO SHOULD ATTEND:

- Log Keepers
- Emergency Planners
- Tactical Advisors
- STACs
- Incident Commanders/Directors
- Bronze, Silver and Gold Commanders

The specialist courses presented by Bond Solon have raised the awareness of our emergency management team as to how their actions, decisions and records could, following a major incident, be scrutinised in courts, public inquiries and inquests. The training was also invaluable in providing our delegates with an understanding of how to adhere to best practice standards in log-keeping. The learning was reinforced by practical exercises and feedback from Bond Solon’s experienced lawyer trainers on how well we had applied their advice and guidance.

Kent FRS acknowledged the need to ensure our Incident Commanders fully understood the importance of maintaining a decision log, together with the practicalities of achieving this on the incident ground in a fast moving dynamic incident. Bond Solon provided training that fully met these core outcomes by means of a series of one day command loggist courses that blended the legislative theory with operational practice. The days ended with a practical exercise scenario for our commanders to make their decisions against, whilst putting their learning into practice by completing their logs. The simple application of conducting a simultaneous log alongside contemporaneous notes was a light bulb moment for many commanders who left the sessions with an understanding of how to complete these and the skills to achieve it.

Good record keeping serves a further purpose whether or not there is a formal inquiry. It allows lessons to be identified and made more widely available for the benefit of those who might be involved in future emergencies.
